ABOUT THE SID W. RICHARDSON FOUNDATION AND ITS FOUNDER

Sid W. Richardson established the Richardson Foundation in 1947 for the purpose of supporting organizations that serve the people of Texas. Throughout the years, the directors and staff have sought to fulfill his vision by providing grants primarily to educational, health, human service and cultural organizations. When substantial income from assets from the late Mr. Richardson's estate became available in 1962, the Foundation began its current program of distributing major grants, which have totaled $416,426,547.

A lifelong resident of Texas, Mr. Richardson was born on April 25, 1891, in the East Texas town of Athens. Although his interests reached beyond Texas and his personal contacts were worldwide, he retained his utmost concern for the people of his home state. For this reason, he provided in the Foundation's charter that all grants be used to serve the people of Texas.

Oil, cattle and land formed the basis of his lifework. His fortune paralleled the boom and bust nature of the petroleum industry in its early years, but his inherent drive for accomplishment, coupled with his keen insight into human nature and sincere interest in people, contributed more than anything else to his success. He had an amazing instinct about people.

His capacity for generating and maintaining real friendships was exceptional, and he loved to be around true friends. His friends knew him as a man of great courage, yet soft-spoken, kind, sentimental and loyal to everyone who befriended him.

Mr. Richardson was as much at home with cowboys in a country café as dining in fine New York restaurants. He was in no sense extravagant or flamboyant, and he was not impressed with ostentatiousness and people who practiced it.

He had a strong desire to create and build, and his entrepreneurship led him to accept and pursue challenges throughout his life. He was known for his ability to condense complicated situations into simple "horse sense" that endeared him to presidents and business executives. When once asked to describe his own business philosophy, he said, "I guess my philosophy of business life is: Don't be in too big of a hurry, don't get excited, and don't lose your sense of humor."

His reputation as a tireless dealmaker stayed with him to the end of his life. After a full day's work, he died quietly in his sleep on September 30, 1959.

In addition to Mr. Richardson's business dealings, a love for Western art emerged from his ranching experience, which provided him with vivid impressions of the Old West. He became an avid collector of paintings by Frederic Remington (1861-1909) and Charles M. Russell (1864-1926). He thought they captured, better than any other artists, the vitality, color and motion that he had always associated with the West. Today, these magnificent paintings are on permanent exhibit in the Sid Richardson Museum in Sundance Square in Fort Worth, Texas. Established in 1982 and supported by the Foundation, the Museum has one of the nation's most significant private collections of late 19th- and early 20th-century paintings of the American West by Remington and Russell. Visitors from all 50 states and 68 countries have come to view the paintings. The Museum is open daily except for major holidays. Admission is free.

Mr. Richardson continues to have a tremendous impact on his native state through the broad and diverse programs of the Richardson Foundation.

SID W. RICHARDSON

Sid W. Richardson circa 1947 • Mr. Richardson was an avid horseman. Visitors to the Sid Richardson Museum can view his silver-laden black leather parade saddle, vest and chaps, gifts from his friend, Amon G. Carter, and his son, Amon Carter, Jr. at the time of the 1947 Fort Worth Stock Show. The matching outfit was the work of Edward H. Bohlin (1895-1980), saddle maker and silversmith of Hollywood, California.

TEXAS CHRISTIAN UNIVERSITY, COLLEGE OF EDUCATION

The YWCA's three Child Development Centers provide full-day early childhood education for infants through pre-kindergarteners at no cost to homeless families and on a sliding-fee scale for low-income families. The center allows parents in poverty – most of whom are single mothers – to work and obtain education and job training to increase their financial well-being. Dedicated to serving children who face the challenges and risks of poverty and homelessness, the YWCA provides a nurturing, safe and literacy-rich environment to prepare children for success in kindergarten and beyond. ## TAKE TWO: GEORGE CATLIN REVISITS THE WEST | Paintings from National Gallery of Art Through May 31, 2015

George Catlin (1796-1872) was America's most influential 19th century painter of American Indians. Driven by his lifelong mission to create a record of all Indian cultures in the Americas for future generations, he completed more than 1,100 paintings and drawings of the everyday life of Indians that included buffalo hunts, dances, games, amusements, portraits and religious ceremonies.

The exhibition at the Sid Richardson Museum, Take Two: George Catlin Revisits the West, presents 17 of his paintings that illustrate the cultures of American Indians living west of the Mississippi in the 1830s. The exhibition includes the Caddo, Comanche and Kiowa tribes (Texas tribes that Catlin encountered in the Arkansas Territory) and the Cheyenne, Mandan, Ojibwa, Pawnee and Sioux Plains Indian tribes. The paintings are on loan from The Paul Mellon Collection at the National Gallery of Art, Washington, D.C. It is the Museum's first exhibition from the National Gallery of Art.

Visitors may also view a rare Deluxe edition of the most famous book published in the 19th century on the American Indian, Catlin's Letters and Notes on the Manners, Customs, and Condition of the North American Indians, and two of Catlin's American Indian portfolios on loan from a private collection. Buffalo Hunt, a bronze sculpture by Charles M. Russell (1864-1926), modeled in 1905 (cast # unknown, ca.1928), on loan from another private collection, is also included in the exhibition.

"We are delighted that our first loan exhibition from the National Gallery of Art features a selection from George Catlin's Cartoon Collection," said Mary Burke, director of the Sid Richardson Museum. "Thirteen of the works have never been exhibited in Texas."

"Catlin's art is a natural fit for our museum, since Charles Russell and Frederic Remington [1861-1909], two of the most prominent artists in our permanent collection, also devoted themselves to Western themes, with a great awareness of what was unfolding in the West during their lifetime," said Ms. Burke. "Catlin, who recorded the cultural life of the Native Americans he encountered on his travels west of the Mississippi in the 1830s, painted anticipating a time in the future when the manners and customs of the American Indian would be lost. Remington and Russell, who depicted life in the post-Civil War American West, painted with a sense of nostalgia for a West that was then passing or had already passed."

The guest curator for Take Two is Brian W. Dippie, Ph.D., professor emeritus of history at the University of Victoria, British Columbia. Dr. Dippie is a specialist in the history of Western American art and has published extensively on George Catlin.

The Museum, open daily except for major holidays, has free admission. Docents lead free tours of Take Two each Tuesday and Saturday at 2 p.m. and by appointment. On the Second Saturday of each month at 3 p.m., the gallery tour is followed by a live performance by a docent portraying Nancy Cooper Russell, wife of Charles M. Russell, telling stories about his career. (www.sidrichardsonmuseum.org)

Catlin Feasted by the Mandan Chief, 1861/1869, George Catlin, oil on card mounted on paperboard, National Gallery of Art, Washington, Paul Mellon Collection (Cartoon No. 133: The author feasted in the wigwam of Mah-to-toh-pa, the war chief of the Mandans, dining on a roast rib of buffalo and pemican.) | Catlin wanted the world to know that his was the eye behind the art and that he had played a role as participant-observer in every painting, whether he appeared in it or not.

Comanche Horsemanship, 1861/1869, George Catlin, oil on card mounted on paperboard, National Gallery of Art, Washington, Paul Mellon Collection (Cartoon No. 196) | The Comanches, Catlin wrote, were “one of the most powerful and hostile tribes in North America, inhabiting the western parts of Texas and the Mexican provinces...; entirely wild and predatory in their habits; the most expert and effective lancers and horsemen on the continent.” Their horsemanship and their training for war were inseparable, he observed.

Mandan War Chief with His Favorite Wife, 1861/1869, George Catlin, oil on card mounted on paperboard, National Gallery of Art, Washington, Paul Mellon Collection (Cartoon No. 30) | This family portrait features Mah-to-toh-pa, or Four Bears, in his full regalia.

Four Kiowa Indians, 1861/1869, George Catlin, oil on card mounted on paperboard, National Gallery of Art, Washington, Paul Mellon Collection (Cartoon No. 69) | Catlin considered Kiowas “a much more elegant race” than other Plains tribes.
