ABOUT SID W. RICHARDSON

Sid W. Richardson established the Sid W. Richardson Foundation in 1947 to support organizations that serve the people of Texas. The Foundation provides grants primarily in the areas of education, health, human services, and arts and culture. When substantial income from Mr. Richardson's estate became available in 1962, the Foundation began its current program of distributing major grants, which have totaled $545,189,317.

Mr. Richardson was born on April 25, 1891, in the East Texas town of Athens. A lifelong resident of Texas, he rose from humble beginnings to become one of the country's wealthiest men.

Oil, cattle, and land formed the basis of his lifework. When he was eight years old, his father taught him how to trade livestock. Mr. Richardson's innate drive for accomplishment, coupled with his keen insight into human nature and sincere interest in people, contributed more than anything else to his success. His capacity for generating and maintaining real friendships was exceptional. His friends knew him as a man of great courage, yet soft-spoken, kind, sentimental, and loyal to everyone who befriended him.

Plain-spoken and unpretentious, he got along with people from all walks of life. "Mr. Sid," as he was known, was as much at home with cowboys in a country cafe as dining in a fine New York restaurant. He was neither extravagant nor flamboyant, and he was unimpressed with the trappings of wealth.

His ability to condense complicated situations into simple "horse sense" endeared him to Presidents and business executives. Once asked to describe his business philosophy, he said, "I guess my philosophy of business life is: Don't be in too big of a hurry, don't get excited, and don't lose your sense of humor."

Mr. Richardson learned the oil business from the ground up. His fortunes paralleled the boom-and-bust nature of the petroleum industry until his discovery of West Texas's Keystone field in the 1930s. He once quipped, "I been broke so often I thought it was habit formin'." He also was a successful rancher and cattleman, a major collector of art of the American West, and a generous and usually anonymous philanthropist.

His businesses included cattle and ranching operations in Texas and Oklahoma, including San Jose Island off the Texas Gulf Coast. He raised registered Quarter horses and Santa Gertrudis cattle, and he played a critical role in preserving the Texas Longhorn.

A love for Western art emerged from Mr. Richardson's ranching experience. He built one of the nation's largest collections of late 19th- and early 20th-century paintings and sculptures by Frederic Remington (1861–1909) and

Photograph taken in 1950 of Sid W. Richardson (seated) and his friends, Amon G. Carter (left), founder/publisher of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, and General Dwight D. Eisenhower (U.S. Army, ret.), who became the 34th President of the United States (1953–61)

Charles M. Russell (1864–1926). He thought they captured, better than any other artists, the vitality, color, and motion he had always associated with the West. The magnificent paintings are on permanent exhibit in downtown Fort Worth in the Sid Richardson Museum, which is supported by the Foundation and free to the public.

Mr. Richardson maintained his reputation as a tireless dealmaker to the end. Having arrived at San Jose after a full day of activities in Fort Worth, he died quietly in his sleep on September 30, 1959.

As Sid W. Richardson Foundation President and CEO Pete Geren has aptly said, "Sid Richardson was a man who helped shape the history of our state and Fort Worth, and whose legacy continues to improve the lives of countless Texans today."

KEY CENTER FOR LEARNING DIFFERENCES

Since 1966, Key School has served over 7,000 students with language-based learning differences like dyslexia. Recognizing the community need beyond private and summer school, Key expanded in 2018 to become the Key Center for Learning Differences (KCLD). The only center of its kind in Tarrant County, Key trains and certifies public and private school educators to become Certified Academic Language Therapists (CALTs). Placing CALTs in public, private, and charter schools is central to Key's literacy education and advocacy mission, enabling other schools to offer the same valuable instruction on which Key relies for comprehensive dyslexia therapy. To date, Key students with demonstrated financial need have received $1.1M in financial aid; 100% of seniors graduate, moving on to either university, trade school, or gainful employment. Key has completed a successful capital campaign and recently moved into its new campus to accommodate Key's growth and allow for the expansion of existing academic services, as well as training, outreach, and professional development for teachers, administrators, and parents.

The academy's mission is to cultivate and empower young men to develop perseverance, resilience, integrity, and discipline, and to achieve academic excellence. Its STEM (science, technology, engineering, and mathematics) program offers its scholars challenging and innovative learning opportunities. In 2018, YMLA opened the Dr. William H. Koehler Design Den, named in honor of the former board president of the FWISD. The Design Den is a 21st-century collaborative fabrication lab for engineer scholars in ninth through twelfth grades to learn modern design, prototyping, and manufacturing by utilizing additive and subtractive manufacturing processes to perform tasks including 3D carving, laser engraving, and computer numeric-controlled milling. MEALS ON WHEELS OF TARRANT COUNTY

From humble beginnings in 1973 to a benchmark program that now serves approximately 1.7 million meals per year, Meals On Wheels of Tarrant County is an immense source of pride for the citizens of Tarrant County. Each year, over 5,200 volunteers drive more than 1.2 million miles, delivering meals, providing daily safety checks, and offering friendly smiles. These important human connections fight food insecurity and hunger and help combat social isolation. Registered dietitians plan meals to meet the dietary guidelines established by the U.S. government. Every client is assigned to a case manager who assesses individual needs and coordinates services. Case managers make over 11,000 home visits and 13,000 referrals for other services annually. Last year, 5,407 clients received services, helping them to live independently in their own homes instead of being forced into nursing homes and other care facilities.

FOUNDATIONAL LITERACY ACADEMY FOR K-3 TEACHERS/ FORT WORTH ISD

House Bill 3 (HB3), passed by the 86th Texas Legislature in June 2019, required that all kindergarten through third-grade teachers and principals attend a teacher literacy achievement academy by the end of the 2022-2023 school year. In response, the Fort Worth Independent School District created the Foundational Literacy Academy for K-3 Teachers and engaged national literacy researcher and scholar Dr. Timothy Shanahan to align the district's literacy frameworks with HB3 "Reading Academy" guidelines. During the 2020-2021 school year, the FWISD implemented the HB3 Reading Academies' formal training modules, including the pathway to biliteracy modules for bilingual, dual language, or Spanish Language Arts and Reading. Nearly 1,000 teachers, campus administrators, and campus coaches are enrolled in the HB3 Reading Academies. FWISD anticipates more than 700 additional participants completing the foundational literacy professional learning sessions over the 2021-2022 school year.

CORNERSTONE ASSISTANCE NETWORK

Founded in 1992, Cornerstone Assistance Network (CAN) provides relief, recovery, and restoration services for residents of Tarrant County—from food, clothing, housing, job training and placement, reentry services, and family success coaching to medical services. Its medical and cataract clinics are open to those without health insurance or access to affordable healthcare who meet eligibility requirements. The Cornerstone Charitable Medical Clinic is staffed by volunteer dentists and doctors, including primary care and specialists in neurology, oncology, ophthalmology, rheumatology, and cardiology. Its network of local healthcare providers enables patients to manage chronic illnesses such as diabetes and heart disease. In 2019, the medical clinic cared for 801 patients in over 150 clinic days. The Cornerstone Cataract Clinic, the nation's first free cataract facility for the uninsured, performed its first cataract procedure in 2013. Volunteer physicians and ophthalmic staff can treat up to 10 patients per clinic day. Each year the clinic restores the sight of up to 100 patients, allowing them to regain their independence, and for many, their employment and ability to care for their families.

COMMUNITY FOOD BANK

The mission of the Community Food Bank is to fight hunger and poverty by giving food, education, programs, and resources to families in a dignified, personal, and timely manner. The food bank specializes in direct distribution of fresh and frozen meats, produce, dairy, and desserts to hungry people and families. The recent upgrade of its antiquated 6,000-square-foot freezer has allowed the food bank to maintain safe and reliable freezer temperatures for efficient cold storage of the food. Serving mainly residents of east Fort Worth, the food bank provides food to an average of 600 families a day, Monday–Thursday, throughout the year, with special meals for holidays. The food distributed annually by the food bank is equivalent to over 7.6 million meals. The Community Food Bank certainly lives up to its motto: “Feeding Families, Feeding Hope!”

READ FORT WORTH

With evidence to support the connection between early literacy and future academic success, former Fort Worth Mayor Betsy Price, Fort Worth ISD Superintendent Dr. Kent P. Scribner, business leaders, and philanthropic stakeholders established Read Fort Worth in 2016. The collaboration of cross-sector partners established the goal of preparing all students to read on grade level by third grade. Read Fort Worth uses research and data, community input, and the mobilization of a broad coalition of education champions and decision makers to advance its goal. During the COVID-19 pandemic, Read Fort Worth made “porch visits” to students to check on their well-being and deliver instructional, social-emotional, and IT resources. It also provided 5,000 literacy packets at drive-in resource hubs. The Sid W. Richardson Foundation supported Read Fort Worth’s initiative to place computer “hot spots” in 6,000 homes that lacked internet access.

Since the founding in 2006 of Methodist Justice Ministry (MJM) of First United Methodist Church in Fort Worth, its small team of attorneys has secured legal protections in the family courts for indigent victims of family violence and child abuse. In 2020, MJM filed a record number of 139 cases and is continuing to work through an unprecedented backlog of cases associated with the increase in family violence attributed to COVID school closures and financial crisis. To help families escape from their abusers, MJM provides housing, groceries, household items, furniture, car repairs, and clothing. Funding from the Sid W. Richardson Foundation helped MJM provide over 750 counseling sessions to families overcoming abuse and provide school supplies and holiday gifts to 200 children. CENTER FOR TRANSFORMING LIVES

The 114-year-old Center for Transforming Lives (CTL) annually provides anti-poverty programming for over 3,000 women with children in Tarrant County, helping families move from poverty to stability through homeless services, no-cost early childhood education, and economic mobility services. During the early days of COVID-19, CTL launched a Relief & Recovery program to ensure that families were safely sheltered and had their basic needs met, including food, diapers, formula, and hygiene items. The Sid W. Richardson Foundation's contribution helped CTL provide support to families, in spite of the loss of revenue from the closure of its Resale Store and its event venue. The Foundation's funding also allowed CTL to continue healthcare coverage for its furloughed teachers. Those teachers are back, and CTL's 10 child care centers are open and providing nurturing care and education to children from low-income families.

BOYS & GIRLS CLUBS OF GREATER TARRANT COUNTY

Established in 1926, the Boys & Girls Clubs of Greater Tarrant County is the largest youth services club in Texas. The youth development organization serves more than 36,000 youth annually through branches located around the county and outreach initiatives. The Club's after-school programs focus on academic success, healthy lifestyles, and citizenship to empower young people to reach their full potential as productive, caring, and responsible citizens. During the COVID pandemic, the Club reached beyond the walls of its buildings to provide health and human services, food, and programming to Club members and their families in their homes and neighborhoods. The Sid W. Richardson Foundation assisted the Club with its launch of the Mobile Clubhouse Experience in 2020 to continue to expand its neighborhood services and programming to meet the needs and improve the lives of its Club members and their families.

TARRANT AREA FOOD BANK

Tarrant Area Food Bank (TAFB) was founded in 1982 in Fort Worth with the mission to empower our communities to alleviate hunger by providing food, education, and resources. TAFB now serves Tarrant and 12 surrounding counties. Working with partners across its service area, TAFB provides food assistance to low-wage workers, older adults, victims of family violence and disasters, the chronically ill, the disabled, the homeless, and the long-term unemployed. TAFB assumed a major leadership role in the regional response to the nutritional crisis caused by COVID. School closures, supply chain distributions, soaring unemployment, and ruptures in the local social safety net left an unprecedented number of residents without food. TAFB provided the equivalent of 50 million meals in 2020 compared with 30 million in 2019. The Sid W. Richardson Foundation provided funding for investments in logistical and transportation capabilities needed to meet the soaring demand.

CATHOLIC CHARITIES FORT WORTH

For more than a century, Catholic Charities Fort Worth (CCFW) has been working every day to end poverty, one family at a time. Each year, CCFW provides hope and help to tens of thousands across North Texas through a wide array of evidence-based services designed to empower people to reach their bigger, brighter future. As an agency committed to serving the neediest in our community, CCFW acted quickly when COVID-19 plunged so many people into crisis. CCFW's rapid response provided immediate financial assistance, connected clients with community resources, and helped many develop a plan for a self-sufficient and secure future. With support from the Sid W. Richardson Foundation and other donors, CCFW served more than 10,000 families whose lives had been upended by COVID. Throughout the crisis, CCFW continued its walk with its existing clients on their pathways out of poverty and helped 127 families reach out-of-poverty status in 2020.

STAGE WEST THEATRE

Stage West was founded in 1979 and has become a major presence in the regional theater scene with a local and national patron base. Including artists, volunteers, students, and general audiences, Stage West programming connects with nearly 25,000 community members and tourists every year. The company also runs its own café and serves the community with multiple venues available for rental. The COVID pandemic brought with it the most challenging era in the history of live theater and Stage West. The Sid W. Richardson Foundation joined with other friends and supporters to help Stage West weather the storm. The theater offered original and non-traditional theatrical events to sustain its connection with the community and provide continuous employment for its staff through the shutdown. Stage West also employed local artists to meet its mission to entertain, inspire, and challenge through great live theater.

MEET SCOTT WINTERROWD

In the summer of 2019, Scott Winterrowd succeeded Mary Burke as Director of the Sid Richardson Museum. Mrs. Burke retired after 23 years of service to the Museum both as its first educator and as its second director. Like his predecessor, Mr. Winterrowd is an educator by experience and at heart. He is committed to the mission of the Museum to educate, engage, and inspire its visitors to find meaning, value, and enjoyment through exploring its collection of paintings of the late 19th- and early 20th-century American West. He has a strong background in American art, having previously worked for the Amon Carter Museum of American Art, Dallas Museum of Art, and the J. Paul Getty Museum in Los Angeles. Immediately prior to joining the Richardson Museum, he served as Director of Education at the Meadows Museum, Southern Methodist University.

Director Scott Winterrowd shared ways to enhance the visitor experience with docents.

Since joining the Richardson Museum, he has completed several projects that enhance the museum experience on-site and virtually. The improvements included the repurposing of the former store space into a new front gallery, a redesign of the Museum's website, and the installation of a new LED gallery lighting system that has transformed the viewing experience of the collection. The front gallery introduces visitors to Sid W. Richardson, the Museum's mission, and its collection.

In addition to the physical improvements, the Museum mounted two major exhibitions that prominently featured the permanent collection in new ways. The first, A Fortune in Oils: Sid Richardson's Personal Collection, told his story through the paintings he lived with, displayed alongside rarely seen personal artifacts including letters, objects, photographs, and articles published during his lifetime. The second, In a Different Light: Winslow Homer and Frederic Remington, paired the works of these two giants of American art and compared their rise as popular illustrators in the second half of the 19th century with their late works that feature man set against the forces of nature. The exhibit centered around an oil painting by Homer, Two Figures by the Sea, 1881, on loan from the Denver Art Museum that was hung in conversation with Remington's nocturnes from the Sid Richardson collection. The Amon Carter Museum of American Art also loaned works on paper by Homer as well as its 1903 Remington painting, His First Lesson.

To complement the pairing of Homer and Remington, the Museum installed Casting the Cavalry: Remington's Military Subjects in Bronze in the front gallery. It was the first exhibit in that space and featured a selection of sculptures on loan from a private collection. The Museum looks forward to utilizing the new gallery to bring education programming out of the classroom and into the forefront of the Museum. Virtual tours of the Museum's exhibits are hosted on the website at <https://sidrichardsonmuseum.org/visit/virtual-tour/>.

Western art enthusiasts, art groups, college students, and other adult learners expanded their knowledge of Western art through gallery talks, lectures, workshops, and hands-on studio activities.

(Left) Docents and staff made art come alive for young learners through educational programs such as storytime, workshops, and hands-on art activities.
